1. When

Family photography aims at capturing different stages of life, each with its own unique moments that turn into memories. So to plan for a family photoshoot, the first step is to find out what memories matter most to be documented at this stage. Growing characteristics, specific activities, interests and different personalities at each age, each worth being captured and kept.

why now?

is the key question!

Simple habits, won't last for long!

Along with the life stages, SEASONS have an impact on your photographs; Different colors, moods and feelings, along with specific outfits suitable for the weather, all play an important role when it comes to outdoor photography!

Photographs taken on a hot, sunny summer day look more vibrant, chilled and relaxed, compared to autumn photographs which are much more exuberant and colourful. The low light and muted colors on a chilly winter morning brings on excitement and deep joy to everyone, creating more dramatic feelings, while spring is about freshness and joy of blossoms and rain!

So how to decide?

Let's talk

2. Where?

Deciding about the location again goes to your answer to the previous question:

Why now?

Once thinking about the answer, consider the most memorable location for your family, where you spend most of your time, making more memories there lately. It could be your home, that corner reminds you of cuddling times you've had since your baby is born, or your local park, where you spend your family time every weekend, where kids have picked their own special tree, and parents their own romantic viewpoint.

You can always combine both indoor and outdoor options! Plan for your photography day, beginning at home with morning activities to warm up, while the kids are still in the just-woke-up cuddle mood, followed by a couple of hours activity-packed outdoor time and a picnic for lunch.

We always plan for the day in advance, considering everyone's favourite games and entertainments. The ideal lifestyle family photography experience is for you to enjoy your family time, these are the moments you will remember in future so be present and leave everything else to your photographer.

3. What to wear and how to style?

What outfits to choose, what colors go together and how to find your favourite color palette?

Your clothing has a huge impact on the feeling of your photographs. First consider your answer to the previous questions; Location and season of your photoshoot. Then it comes to your home style, furniture and the type of artworks you have in mind.

A quick tip is once you pick the color palette, begin styling your outfits with a patterned dress. Then find the tones that go with those in the pattern and your color palette.

You will receive a style guide prior to your photography experience.

4. How to preserve your precious memories?

Well, that is a big question! a scary one! How many times have you lost a phone or a hard drive, therefore lost all those photos stored there? Living in the digital age, having a usb with all the digital files are main choice of my clients, believing in the fact that this way they are safe! But digital files are not archival, they will eventually corrupt. Yes, having multiple back-ups help but that is not the safest choice! Plus how often do you go through those digital photos? What about your children?

Being a photographer, I believe my goal is not only to capture your memorable moments, it is also to help you preserve those memories in the highest print quality. Having your photographs printed in an album, fine art prints and frames, assure you that those moments will last long enough for your grandchildren and even great grandchildren to be seen, remembered and cherished for a long time.

Isn't it the main reason for photography? to be kept safe!

Print to preserve your memories

5. How to display your photos?

Each memorable stage of parenthood takes on a storyline of its own with new meanings and discovery, new story, new findings, and new characteristics. However, before you know it, each chapter soon vanishes into the next.

So allocating different corners of your home, combining displays, frame styles and colors, visualises your family journey in a more meaningful way.

Together we will create a home gallery, a family heirloom album, all your memories printed to be organised, seen and treasured everyday.

Our journey begins on our first talk, on the phone or in person, going through more details and sharing ideas, then follows by the first time I meet your family.

And that is only the beginning.. My aim is to photograph your family through different stages of life.. seeing you grow from your first newborn to a family of 5...6...

See your children grow up into teenagers and in every stage create new tangible memories for you and for them to keep and to remember.. So let's begin with the end in mind, with that reason why are going through this experience...
